CIVIL RIGHTS PIONEER • EDUCATOR • MINISTER

Ingrid Burton Nathan

A living voice of American history.

Firsthand stories of courage, faith, education, and the responsibility of the next generation.

A STORY THAT CONNECTS GENERATIONS

In 1964, at just fourteen, Ingrid Burton Nathan became the first African American student to integrate Seminole County Public Schools in Florida. A retired Spanish teacher with 38 years in education, she holds a BA in Spanish from Florida Southern College and an MA in Curriculum & Instruction from National-Louis University. Her work as an educator, minister, and speaker connects historical experience with courage, service, and community.

SIGNATURE PRESENTATIONS

Walking Through Closed Doors

Legacy of the Six Triple Eight

Passing the Torch

Honoring Harry T. Moore

Living Black History

RECOGNITION & LEGACY

2018 · UNCF Champion of Education

2022 · Ingrid Burton Nathan Building dedication, Sanford Middle School

2024 · BFSA Heritage Jubilee Hometown Hero Award

Daughter of Edna Cross Burton, a Six Triple Eight veteran.

RELEVANT AUDIENCES

Schools and universities · Churches and faith communities · Leadership groups
Historical societies · Community programs · Black History Month events

Request Ingrid for Your Event

ingrid@ingridburtonnathan.com | (407) 221-2050

ingridburtonnathan.com